Introduction by Graham Davies. A concordance, according to the Collins Cobuild English Language Dictionary (1987), is "An alphabetical list of the words in a book or a set of books which also says where each word can be found and often how it is used." I first came across the term "concordance" from one of the lecturers who taught me at university during the early 1960s. It is a list of words and their frequency in a text. It is often used in linguistics and in the study of language. It can be used to find out how often a word is used in a text and where it is used. It can also be used to find out how a word is used in a text. It is a very useful tool for linguists and for anyone who is interested in the study of language.
