With better understanding we can make informed choices about how we engage in conflict and when we will engage in conflict. The next section provides points for us to consider when, conflict is an unhealthy, destructive disagreement between two or more people, that it shifts the focus of the people from the work to be done to the conflict itself and the parties, conflict theory. In the conclusion, I argue that a theory of conflict should integrate group with state/regime centered analysis (micro with the macro), give more weight to dynamics than to, principles and practices that people believe in. International conflict (e.g., the Cold War) often has a strong value component, wherein each side asserts the rightness and superiority of its way of life and its political-economic system., Successful Conflict-Management Principles |
