Precognition (from the Latin prae-, "before" and cognitio, "acquiring knowledge"), also called prescience, future vision, future sight is an alleged psychic ability to see events in the future., Cognitive biases are systematic patterns of deviation from norm or rationality in judgment, and are often studied in psychology and behavioral economics..
Although the reality of these biases is confirmed by replicable research, there are often controversies about how to classify these biases or how to explain them., (Click of the concept of momentum, and the fact of its conservation (in toto for a closed system) were discovered by Leibniz.p. ..., Coping with
